

Christine Jonson Patterns

STRETCH FABRIC RULER

Stretch fabric rulers are used to determine the amount of stretch a given fabric has. To use, fold a piece of fabric that is 2X the width and length of the first box in half. Place the raw edge on the left side of the left box. Then, gently tugging, stretch the folded side to the box on the right.

Watch how your fabric 'recovers' - as recovery is as important as stretch!

Does it snap back? That's snappy recovery. Does it slowly move back in place? That's soft recovery